Dr. Coleman from OHSU presented the training to over 70 attendees between both counties in late September. Bonnie also provided an updated regarding the Self-Healing Communities/ACE work initiative which hosted the film 'Resilience' in both Coos and Curry Counties in October and November. Over 60 people were in attendance at each film night. CAC members had the opportunity to take part in CHIP work development and provide input, and they also had the opportunity to network, share successes and receive appreciation and intentional times for relaxation (hand massages, chair yoga, etc). 7.0 CASA of Curry County	Mona Chandler gave a presentation overviewing the Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA) of Curry County program, which is a program that connects abused and neglected children who go into the court system with a CASA volunteer, who will serve as their personal advocate and give them a voice throughout their time in the court system. Mona read the following statement, 'Walk in Their Shoes' in regards to the children that the CASA program serves... 'National CASA's roots go back to 1977 when Seattle Judge David Soukup grew frustrated as he looked around the courtroom. In cases involving children who were	Reach out to Amanda regarding the FEARsome clinic and the problem of insurance not always following children once they've come into care and are then required to leave the area where they went into town.

	abused or neglected, lawyers represented parents, and caseworkers represented their agency, but no one was there advocating exclusively for the child’s best interests... Judge Soukup realized that volunteers from the community could be trained to be the child’s voice in court. The first CASA program was born...Today, CASA and Guardian ad Litem (GAL) programs serve children and youth in thousands of communities- from our largest cities to the most rural counties.’ The CASA program is mandated by the state, but there is no funding allotted to fund it. In Curry County, there are currently 73 children who are Wards of the Court. Of those, 39 currently have been assigned a CASA volunteer, but 34 are still waiting for a CASA. Mona referenced page 206 of the CC0 2.0 document and mentioned that children in foster care, if/when they need to move out of the area where they first went into the court system, that their insurance does not follow them, which is a problem and Mona asked if anyone could speak to that. Belle Sheperd mentioned that their insurance should follow them but that often times there are barriers if the CCO isn’t contracted with providers out of the area, etc. Hollie Strahm mentioned that they are also experiencing these problems on their end at Coast Community Health and mentioned that it could be beneficial to connect with Amanda McCarthy from Advanced Health who oversees the FEARSome program. Mona has an idea to help fix this problem, by creating a new Patient Navigator position who would be able to track each child and help ensure that the details of their child’s life and healthcare are known and do not fall through the cracks. Beth Barker-Hidalgo spoke to her experience as a CASA and informed us how while it is challenging, she is able to help provide some wrap-around services for the child in her care, and she is hopeful with some of the new training
